NOTE:

Disease causing viruses and bacteria are still circulating, either at low levels in the United States or elsewhere in the world. For example, each year the United States is hit with multiple importations of measles. Measles is no longer circulating in the United States, but the virus is frequently imported from outside this country. If vaccination coverage levels drop, it is likely we will see a resurgence of measles. In 1989, the United States was hit with a measles epidemic resulting in 55,000 cases of measles, 11,000 hospitalizations, and more than 120 deaths between 1989 and 1991.

Today, there are far fewer visible reminders of the unnecessary suffering, injuries, and premature deaths caused by vaccine-preventable diseases. Most of today's parents have never seen these diseases and the suffering they can cause and, therefore, are less concerned about the need for immunization compared to other parental priorities.

The Lafayette County Health Department offers community immunization clinics each month at various sites around the county. For information about immunizations or to inquire about dates and clinic locations please call the Lafayette County Health Department at 608-776-4895 or visit www.lafayettecountyhealthdepartment.org.
